

MAGDALEN COURT SCHOOL

Outstanding GCSE success

MMAGDALEN Court School is a Family Trust school which caters for boys and girls from one to 18 years.

At Magdalen Court School every student is special. The school's philosophy is to endeavour to develop the full potential of each child. Traditional methods are incorporated alongside a progressive, modern approach.

The aim is for high academic achievement and an enrichment programme, with an early GCSE strategy in place for bright and gifted children, alongside a powerful support department which caters for dyslexia, dyscalculia and other specific learning difficulties.

Magdalen Court School has had some outstanding successes with GCSE examinations — 100 per cent was gained in the GCSE league tables in both 2003 and 2004. Recently a group of children from 12 years of age entered for their GCSE in Expressive Arts and some remarkable theatrical work was produced.

Science, Maths, Art and Sport, which often takes place in the school's full-sized sports hall, are all keenly developed, along with music and a clear focus on the Theatrical Arts.

The choir is especially popular and singing is undertaken in both French and Latin. There are six theatrical presentations each year varying from informal verse speaking and singing events through to dramatic productions such as Annie.

Outward Bound activities hold a very special place at Magdalen Court School. The school usually undertakes a series of walks leading up to the Ten Tors, where medals have been won each year.

Swimming and canoeing are highly popular activities. The school undertakes the British Canoe Union awards and pupils have achieved their coaching awards.

Magdalen Court School has a small and highly individual sixth form where students are usually enrolled as Senior Prefects. The school offers first-time A-level courses as well as one-term and one-year retake courses for both A-level and GCSE.

There is also a flourishing Nursery Department where the children are encouraged to explore and express themselves in a warm, friendly atmosphere of approval. The Nursery classes are structured on a gentle formal basis to promote a sound beginning to a child's education. Great effort is made to nurture their confidence and abilities

Magdalen Court School offers a great range of opportunities, both academic and extra-curricular. For further information, please telephone 01392 494919.
